Finding the right person for the job made easy!

Job candidates visit your on-line survey.

Information is exchanged through interactive eForms.

When someone meets your job requirements, you're notified by e-mail.

I thought you'd appreciate hearing of my solution to this all-to-familiar story...

Recently, a colleague asked me not to communicate using e-mail. He'd posted a job online, and his inbox was flooded with resumes.

As a result, we couldn't conduct business using e-mail. To ease his suffering, I offered to build him an online job application (survey) linked with a database. Once a candidate met the individual job requirements, my colleague received his/her profile via e-mail — automatically. In addition, all profiles and resumes in the database could be viewed at anytime using an ordinary Web browser.

This could be you: tomorrow morning, you open your e-mail and quickly pinpoint the best applicants for a particular job — all before you've finished your first cup of coffee. By the time you're ready for a second cup, with a few mouse clicks, you'll already have contacted the premier candidates!

I welcome the chance to build you an online survey. Within a week, you could be saving money, working more efficiently and, maybe, cutting back on those cups of coffee.
